L.G. Wright Glass Company

The L.G. Wright Glass Company was started by Si Wright in 1937. He started by purchasing glassware from other companies and selling it, then having molds made and the items made by various glass companies. L.G. Wright never made glass, he just purchased or had molds made and then contracted with various glass houses to make the items for him. Many of the Wright items were made in limited quantities. For a detailed look at the L.G. Wright Glass Company see "The L. G. Wright Glass Company" by James Measell and W. C. "Red" Roetteis. After Si's death in 1969 his wife Verna Mae took over the running of the company until her death in 1990 when it was bequeathed to her cousin Dorothy Stephan and her daughter Phyllis who ran the business until it closed. The L.G. Wright Glass Company continued in operation until May 2, 1999 when it closed its doors and sold all its remaining stock and molds at public auction.

Some of the Wright glass is marked with one of the Wright marks, but very little. There are very few open salt or open salt want-a-be's that are marked and they are found both marked and unmarked.

All colors may be found in satin as this is an acid etching process that Wright and others used on items that the buyer wanted in satin (Can also be done by buyer after purchase). Wright in the last few years has flashed many Crystal items in Cranberry Mist (Pink), Marigold (Amber), Stormy Blue (Lt Blue) Sunshine (Yellow), Christmas Green (Lt Green), and Sparkling Ruby (Red) to order for customers and then kiln fired them.

Daisy & Button Round Salt (Degenhart & L.G. Wright)

The best way to tell the difference between an unmarked Degenhart and L.G. Wright Daisy and Button Salt is that the center of the four daisies around the bottom outside edge of the Degenhart are 2mm from the bottom edge and you can see part of the daisy between the daisy center and the edge. On the L.G. Wright the center of the 4 daisies are on the edge.

Moon & Stars Salt (L.G. Wright & Smith)

The best way to tell the difference between the L.G. Wright and the Smith Moon & Stars Salt is that the Smith has a ring base with the pattern inside and the L.G. Wright has a larger flat base with the pattern.
